How to make

Using scissors, carefully cut the middle out of a paper plate, so you're left with a ring about 4cm thick.

Cut out the leaf and berry shapes from this template.

Trace around the leaf shapes on to your green card with pencil, you'll need 20 to 50 leaves depending on how full you want your wreath to look.

Cut the shapes out until you have enough to fully cover your paper base. Fold each leaf lengthways in half to make it look more realistic.

Stick the leaf shapes to your paper plate ring. A good way to do this is placing them at a slight angle to the left rather than straight up, securing them with glue.

Work your way clockwise around the plate until it's covered with leaves.

Trace and cut out a few of the berries from your red paper, and stick them in groups of 3 on your wreath, spaced evenly between your green leaf shapes.

Attach your twine or ribbon to the top of your paper plate at the back, and your wreath is ready to hand for some festive cheer!

Crafty variations

Go the extra mile by...

- Creating your own leaf or bauble shapes to add variety.
- Using different coloured or glitter paper to add a Christmas sparkle to your wreath.
- Making a paper leaf garland instead by gluing or threading your leaves on some string and hanging it over the fireplace or as a festive table decoration.
